As I look back on my life, I realize that for me there was never enough space in any one of Society's many closed boxes. I never let myself be fenced in by any man-made boundaries.

The result is an unusual life, woven like a fabric of multiple colours, while accumulating tons of experience and wisdom. A life that is now, at age 85, culminating with the unique international online community StraightCURES.com created for independent health-conscious individuals all over the world.

When I was 11 years old in 5th grade, I started my first publication for my classmates and family, named The Top. At the time I had decided to become a journalist in order to make the world a better place by educating my readers.

After two more ambitious but short-lived "newspapers" during my early teens, I decided that journalism, as practiced by most current papers and magazines, did not live up to my ideals and standards, so I abandoned the idea of becoming a journalist. However, I would not give up writing, nor my dream of contributing to a better world.

I was lucky enough to get the opportunity to learn English in England from age 14, in part at the prestigious Haileybury and Imperial Services College, and so became bilingual in English and Swedish, soon adding fluency in Spanish, French, German and Danish.

When time came for University, I took up Law, Economics, and Political Science at the Swedish Universities of Lund and Stockholm, to qualify myself for a diplomatic career.

Behind it all there was still an urge to contribute in some way to the shaping of a more peaceful, better educated and happier world.

During my time as a university student, I adopted the dictum from Roman times, revived during the Renaissance era, "to me nothing human is alien".

After completing my university studies and my compulsory military service, I allowed myself a 6 months sabbatical, roaming about western Europe alone in my second hand Volkswagen "beetle".

As a diplomat I was first posted in Denmark and then in Pakistan, where I became head of the embassy for some 6 months with the title Chargé d'Affaires. Upon my return to the Foreign Ministry in Stockholm I became a specialist on Swedish financial and technical aid to developing countries.

7-year periods have been shown by Astrology to signify a natural time measure in the personal development of human beings. So after 7 years in diplomacy, I was already looking for wider and greener fields, but above all for more personal freedom of action than the diplomatic career allowed.

I decided that the lacking freedom of expression and the financial limitations a modest government salary imposed, were both on a collision course with my urge to contribute to a better world. So I quit and started a consulting and brokerage business on the Canary Islands, where North European mass tourism was just beginning to boom.

Fast forward 6 years, and I had become financially independent, enough to do whatever I wanted without depending on any job or any other person. And that was precisely my short term goal when setting up my own business.

To understand why I did what I did at this point, we have to fast backward 20 years, to my early days at the university when I was 19 years old. For reasons difficult to analyze or understand, I had become fascinated by what I later came to call “the invisible reality” which can be summarized as electromagnetic energy frequencies and the phenomenon of resonance between them. In this connection we must not forget the new branch of science called Quantum Physics, that overturned the entire paradigm of classical Physics with its Laws of Nature.

Specifically, I took up serious studies of Parapsychology and Astrology in order to understand the human condition and what human beings are spiritually capable of and able to achieve, using the power of Consciousness, Thought and Will. And don't let's miss the deep connection between these fundamental human concepts on the one hand, and health on the other!

Both Parapsychology and Astrology are advanced empirical sciences, in spite of not being admitted as such by the ruling official institutions, which are founded on a limiting belief in dogmatic materialism.

Our official mainstream science limits itself to what the physical human senses – or their electronic extensions, i.e. instruments – are able to perceive, measure, weigh, divide and multiply. Which means that thoughts and ideas, symbols, memories, feelings etc. are not recognized by them as really existing in a scientific sense.

I hope I didn't lose you...I know – this stuff is kind of hard to wrap one's head around. But it was what made me eventually decide to venture into Astrology and then take up Holistic Health and Alternative Medicine as my final and definite calling.

I then dedicated 7 years to becoming a professional scientific astrologer, lecturing and teaching on both sides of the Atlantic in English, Spanish and Swedish. During this phase I created the Cosmological Foundation in Stockholm where I taught Astrology and Parapsychology and was featured several times by Swedish TV.

As so often happens when someone picks up an intuitive calling, I experienced a series of seemingly strange coincidences that pointed me along the way to becoming a holistic physician at the age of 45.

Having settled for Holistic Medicine as my next challenge, I first focused on Acupuncture, one of the two main branches of Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM). The other branch is Herbal Medicine. Both are truly empirical sciences with massive clinical experience going back thousands of years.

Soon I would add Homeopathy to my tool box, another empirical branch of medical science also based on the invisible information & energy structures of the human mind-body dynamic. It has over 200 years of clinical experience to lean on.

I soon found that Acupuncture and Homeopathy work very well together and I got excellent results with my patients, who had given up on standard pharmaceutical medicine with its often poor results and many serious side effects.

In the Open International University for Complementary Medicine (OIUCM) in Colombo, Sri Lanka, I found my academic base. At the time it was the only university in the world that was entirely dedicated to holistic, natural medicine, and it worked with teachers and students from every continent. In other words, it was the first university truly representing the New Paradigm we are now entering with rocket speed.

After 5 more years of studies at the OIUCM, I earned my Doctor's degree in Alternative Medicine and was invited to teach as visiting professor. Another 4 years later, I was appointed Professor of the Philosophy and Principles of Holistic Medicine at the same university.

In 1996 I wrote an epoch-making book in Swedish about the present paradigm shift in Sweden, with a uniquely holistic perspective, partly built on my astrological and medical insights. Unfortunately, this book is not available in English, and just a few copies of the original Swedish edition remain in my possession.

I have written two more recent books in English, published in the US and available from Amazon and most booksellers by "print on demand". Their names are CRACKING THE RAINBOW CODE, and PARADIGM PULSE – SENSING THE SURGE OF CHANGE.

All along, while pursuing my different careers, I participated in international conferences and lectured in 23 different countries on 5 continents, mostly about health, medicine and astrology.
